

Materials Handling

ORDERS from neighbouring countries have helped mobile elevating work platform company Goscor Hi-Reach to start 2012 with a bang. The company says significant orders have been placed by leading companies in Mozambique, where several product types are to be delivered, including light towers and boom lifts, and in Namibia, where two mobile elevating work platforms were bought by a mining company, a super boom was sold to the Namibian Ports Authority and a big telescopic handler was sold to a rental company in Walvis Bay.
